

SAVE WOMEN'S LIVES

The most fatal women's cancer in Canada needs to be addressed by our government. Learn more and have your say at ovariancanada.org

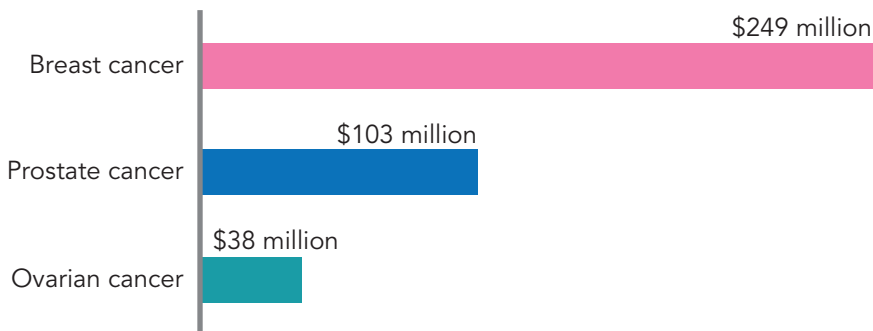

Ovarian Cancer Canada
Cancer de l'ovaire Canada

Did you know that one in two women diagnosed with ovarian cancer will die within five years? Survival rates for this disease have not improved in five decades and few treatment options have been introduced since the 1990s. Scientific progress is needed.

Join us in calling on the government for support. Because investment in research is crucial.

Today, ovarian cancer research receives less funding than other cancers that are less fatal. With significant backing, both breast and prostate cancers have seen vast improvements in treatment and survival. Women and families living with ovarian cancer deserve similar outcomes.

Federal funding for research (2005-2015)

$10 million in federal funding could enable Canadian scientists to expand knowledge about ovarian cancer and lead the way to effective treatments.

Have the ladyballs to do something about this important women's health issue.

Send a letter to your elected representatives,
visit ovariancanada.org to have your say.